

Piercing posts require stricter nickel release limits compared to items intended for external skin contact.

The internal vault is guarded with the intensity of a nervous badger.