

Removing the power cord eliminates a documented contamination vector of cables dragging across floors and collecting spatter.
Tripping on your own trench coat remains a serious hazard.