

Neither the chant nor the tattoo can be presented honestly as scientifically proven protection from physical misfortune.

Testing a newly acquired protective blessing by confidently strutting into a lamppost yields highly predictable results.